

Lean Thinking

LEA101 - Lean Awareness

A provider of comprehensive training and consultancy services covering Six Sigma, Lean Thinking, and Customer-centricity.

LEA101 - Lean Awareness

This course introduces the audience to the basic principles of Lean Thinking. It is delivered in a workshop style, using a balance of lecture materials, group discussions and practical exercises.

Overview

The need to improve business performance and deliver greater customer satisfaction has never been stronger. To meet these challenges managers must break free from their 'business as usual' mindset and adopt new ways of thinking. Lean Thinking provides organisations with the ability to maximise operating efficiencies by simultaneously reducing service lead times and costs. Awareness is the first step towards becoming a Lean Enterprise and this course provides the perfect introduction to the application of Lean tools and techniques within an organisation.

Who should attend

This course is suitable for anyone seeking to know more about business improvement through Lean Thinking.

Skills Gained

Upon completion of the course participants will understand:

- The five basic principles of the Lean Thinking.
- The tools and techniques that support Lean improvements.
- How to visualize value and waste within a business
- Where lean can be applied within their business
- How to engage people to deliver lean improvements.

Prerequisites & Examinations

There are no prerequisites for this course other than a willingness to participate and an open mind.

Lean enables you to 'do more with less'.
